The diagram illustrates an information recommendation apparatus 1000, enclosed in a dashed box. The components and their interconnections are as follows:

- content database (2): A cylinder representing a database.
- type information calculation means (15): A rectangular block that receives input from the content database (2) and outputs to the type information database (16).
- type information database (16): A cylinder representing a database.
- content recommendation means (4): A rectangular block that receives input from the content database (2) and outputs to the content output means (5).
- type information selection means (14): A rectangular block that receives input from the type information database (16) and outputs to the recommendation condition input means (3).
- content registration means (8): A rectangular block that receives input from the type information database (16) and outputs to the access history control means (7).
- content output means (5): A rectangular block that receives input from the content recommendation means (4) and outputs to the network interface means (1).
- recommendation condition input means (3): A rectangular block that receives input from the type information selection means (14) and outputs to the user identification means (6).
- access history control means (7): A rectangular block that receives input from the content registration means (8) and outputs to the user identification means (6).
- user identification means (6): A rectangular block that receives input from the recommendation condition input means (3) and the access history control means (7), and outputs to the network interface means (1).
- network interface means (1): A rectangular block that receives input from the content output means (5) and the user identification means (6), and outputs to the terminal (100) via a communication line (500).

The terminal (100) is represented by a rectangle with a diagonal cross, and the communication line (500) is represented by a circle with a diagonal cross. The entire apparatus is labeled 1000.
